The announcement is made that Epoch Patton, a hard-working laboring man of Marion, Ohio, drew $1,000 in the Louisiana lottery last week. But the names of the ten thousand men who drew blanks will never be mentioned.

The Blue Blood of the Republican Candidate for President.

The Republicans boast of the proud lineage of their candidate. That he springs from illustrious plant is true; but the trouble is that the plant, the best portions of the plant are underground. The first of the family we read of is General John Harrison of the Army of Cornwall. He was a fierce fanatic and deadly hostile to the Catholic Church.

Charles I. of England, was a devoted Catholic, and believed in the "divine right of Kings," he levied money without the authority of Parliament. These two facts, of which Cromwell took advantage, brought the head of Charles to the block, and was the cause of Harrison, on the restoration of Charles II to the throne, being tried and hanged for murder, and he died on the scaffold with the same high courage which he ever displayed on the field.

Hume in his History of England says: "Colonel Harrison (afterwards General), the son of a butcher, and the most ferocious enthusiast in the army, was sent with a strong party to conduct the King to London."

The trial and the execution of Charles were in flagrant violation of the Constitution and laws of England. The House of Commons appointed a Commission of 122 persons, among whom were Cromwell, the highest court, but the refused to serve, and of the 182 named only 70 sat as judges at the trial, and one of those was the ancestor of the Republican candidate for President.

On the restoration of Charles II to the throne, six of the seventy persons who composed the lynch crew were tried and executed—the first trial and execution being that of Harrison. A number of his descendants have filled distinguished positions, and the family is proud of its blue blood, but it was badly beaten by "Blue Jeans."

Republican Bribery at Chicago.

John Sherman has been proclaimed to the world that fifty of his delegates met on Saturday October 27, in the hands of Mr. Lucius O. Appleby, of Appleby & Johnson, as the final stockholder, under penalty of a forfeit of $5,000 on the part of Mr. Maloney and $2,500 on that of Mr. Houtmon.

During the visit of Senator Sherman to Cincinnati, last week, he was awarded a reception on Change, where he made a little speech, and his audience being composed of men of all parties, he could afford to forget his partisan ship long enough to express the hope that Congress would devise some plan of collecting from the people only so much tax as they might be economically using in carrying on the Government.

This is precisely what the Democratic party advocates and what the Mills bill proposes to accomplish.

CINCINNATI'S Centennial was inaugurated on the Fourth of July with a grand flourish of trumpets, and is now in the full tide of success. Marietta's Centennial, commemorative of the establishment of Civil Government in the North-western Territory, will commence on the 17th of July, and will last for a week.

The Troubles of Editors.

St. Louis had a sensation of huge proportions during the past week.—Henry W. Moore, managing editor of the Post-Dispatch, a married man with a family, eloped with Mrs. Norton, wife of John W. Norton, a well-known theatrical manager. It was stated that they started for Australia, taking with them $40,000 and jewelry, the property of Mr. Norton. But it seems they stopped at Toledo, Ky., and registered as W. H. Mason and wife. Here they were identified, and upon the fact becoming known at St. Louis, Mr. Norton had them arrested for larceny. It is stated that the families of Moore and Norton were particularly intimate and inseparable, and when Norton learned of the relations that existed between his wife and his confiding friend he became frantic, and threatened to kill her. Not wishing to die present she concluded to elope with the editor.

A dispatch from Wooster, Ohio, July 7, says: "H. J. Moore, editor of the Creston Journal, this county, was here today and stated that his paper would not appear next week, owing to the fact that his forms had been pined and the type ruined by a shooting stick, and in the same breath he said that his wife had skipped for parts unknown, and that she or the servant girl had done the mischief before leaving. The woman has had three husbands and bears a very unsavory reputation. Under the name of Jennie Croman she at one time conducted a notorious house in Wooster, and she and her sister, Mrs. Moore, were mentioned in the light of the newspapers. Moore has been living with her for four years but now he says he is delighted because she has flown."

"Some Questions for Mr. Harrison's Friends."

Under the above caption, the Chicago Tribune, in its issue of June 15, just published the following from a correspondent at Fort Wayne, Indiana:

Permit a Chicago Hoosier to say a few words and ask a few questions of the Harrison-or-nobody business.

When did Harrison carry Indiana? The answer is, he never did.

Why was he defeated for member of the City Council of Indianapolis? He was defeated because he was a traitor to his country.

Why was he defeated for Governor of Indiana? He was defeated because he was a traitor to his country.

Why was he defeated for President of the United States? He was defeated because he was a traitor to his country.
